

$3.00

Autumn, 1981
Vol. 6, No. 1

Proposed ethical guidelines for work in human services

Child protection policy in Victoria

“Behind every good soldier . . .”

Taking the fear out of investigations

Children’s psychological rights:
An empirical study

Child Abuse

IN THIS ISSUE

Australian Child and Family Welfare
(QUARTERLY)

- EDITORIAL 2
Magarita Frederico
- PROPOSED GUIDELINES FOR WORK IN THE HUMAN SERVICES 3
Ann J. Pilcher and Norman D. Sundberg.
The authors discuss the need for ethical practice guidelines for human service workers who have varying levels of training and practice. In addition, they identify ten principles which they suggest are relevant to the human service worker regardless of education, training or qualifications.
- CHILD PROTECTION POLICY IN VICTORIA PART II 8
Elizabeth Hiskey
This article is the second of two articles (Part I was published in Volume 5, No. 3) which describe the development of the Victorian Government Child Protection policy over the past twenty years.
- TAKING THE FEAR OUT OF INVESTIGATIONS 12
Paul L. Sprague
The author presents an approach to medical treatment which is directed to ensure the best treatment and a caring approach to the parent and child.
- “BEHIND EVERY GOOD SOLDIER . . .” 14
David Palmer
In this article, the author focuses on the children and families who are part of the army community and focuses on army lifestyle and discusses family and community relationships with respect to this group.
- CHILDREN’S PSYCHOLOGICAL RIGHTS: AN EMPIRICAL STUDY 18
Mary Nixon
In considering children’s psychological rights, the author of this article has taken the step of asking children themselves to rank identified psychological rights in order of importance. The author reports on this research project.
- CHILD ABUSE 24
Barbara Walton
A report of a series of articles which won for the author the Children’s Bureau of Australia publications award 1980.
- REGULAR FEATURES
- POT POURRI 30
The Children and the Family Forum: A Report. Yehudi Blacher Practice Exchange — A New Service.
- BOOK REVIEWS 34